GENERAL WINFIELD SCOTT. OF NEW JERSEY.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT. WILLIAM A. GRAHAM, OF NORTH CAROLINA

Resolver. That the Whig people of Washington, conscious that the ground they tread is worthy of the consecrated name it bears only so long as it is peopled by men who hold to the Union of the States as the source and fountain of the blessings of public order and private right—of liberty and Jaw—of happiness at home, and honer throughout the world; and believing that in the principles and policy of the Whig party, and in the tried patriotism of its glorious leaders, is the best safeguard of the Union from domestic discord or foreign quarrel, to nothe Firstly to those principles, and will rully with ardent and united hearts around the tag of the Union, to who mosever of these leaders it may be confided in the approaching contest.—Proceedings of a Whay meeting prior to the nomination.

Gen. Sam Houston's Assaults.

This gentleman is performing his peculiar duty in the campaign. It is limited chiefly to attacks upon the fame of Gen. Scott, principally directed against his military reputation. Of the peculiar fitness of Gen. Houston for this office, or of this office for Gen. Houston, we shall express no opinion. His own history, social, civil and military, is an open book. He has good qualities, for which it gives us pleasure to commend him; and our feelings toward him do not prompt us to seek for qualities of an opposite character.

When Gen. Scott is assailed, however, we need not go out of the party of his assailants for the material of his defence. To the honor of the Democratic party be it spoken, it contains hundreds and thousands of men of intelligence, justice, truth and magnanimity, who are ever prepared to defend the reputation of one of the greatest of living generals and one of the best and noblest of men. Lewis Cass, though every inch a partisan, is yet every inch a truthful and honorable man; and his lips have borne proud testimony to the worth and fame of one whose reputation will ever be dear to our common country. And such testimonials as his may be found upon almost every page of our annals.

Gov. Fitzpatrick, of Alabama, a firm and decided Democrat, in the United States Senate on the 24th of February, 1849, (see Niles's Register, v. 75, p. 147,) offered a joint resolution proposing to confer upon Gen. Scott the title of "Brevet Lieutenant-General," in consideration of his gallant conduct and brilliant services during the late campaign in Mexico.

Senator Clemens, of Alabama, has since then made a similar move. Senator Dodge, of Iowa, in his recent public speeches in this city, accompanied a similar suggestion with encomiums of the most exalted character. Indeed he opposed Gen. Scott by the argument that the measure of his fame was already full!

But we need not attempt to enumerate the defenders of Gen. Scott among the party by which he is opposed. They are countless as the stars in the heavens, and too pure to be impeached by the assaults of Gen. Houston! For his own sake. we would that Gen. H. were otherwise employed, or that he could avail himself of other grounds of attack.

Captain McLane's Letter. The only material part of this letter, published yesterday, is the following:

"THE SUBSTANCE OF MY OBSERVATION, IN REGARD TO THIS DIFFICULTY OF GEN. PIERCE'S, IS, THAT ACCORDING TO MY IMPRESSION, ON THE NIGHT BRIOR TO HIS LEAVING THE CITY OF MEXICO HIS PACE WAS SLAPPED AT A GAME OF CARDS, BY AN OFFICER OF THE ARMY, AND THAT THE INDIGNITY WAS NOT AT THE INSTANT, OR, AS FAR AS I LEARN-ED. SUBSEQUENTLY RESENTED IN SUCH MANNER MAN OF PROPER SPIRIT AND COURAGE."

The Baltimore Argus of last evening reviews M. is a gentleman and a Democrat, it would be better to handle him tenderly. When his testimony is overthrown, or his impressions shown to be erroneous, we shall so represent it to the world. At present, the Argus editor appears to write under excitement, and without data.

The Sizes of Paper and Types.

We are all familiar with feelscap and letter paper, and know about what their sizes are, though each varies very widely from any general standpaper, and, failing in all other sources, turned to Webster, where we found that DEMY was "a paricular size of paper;" but this was not particular rough for us. These names for the sizes of paper are passing away; and it is well, for they have greatly annoyed the paper-making, paperprinting, and paper-reading portions of humanity. Quarto-post, commercial-post, folio-post, fools cap, demy, medium, royal, super-royal, imperial, &c., are names applied to sheets of paper of various sizes for many a day, to the great inconvenience of everybody. Of late, the people in the paper trade have got to speaking of its size by the number of inches it measures. Thus the Intelligencer is 24 by 38, and the Telegraph 22 by 32. These figures present to us an idea of proportions, and will enable us to tell in a moment how many square inches any paper contains. It is a convenient custom, and every one who talks or writes of paper should observe it.

The same inconvenience has always existed with respect to types. Each size has its arbitrary name, as pica, long primer, brevier, nonpareil, &c. We have heard printers (who knew nothing of how many lines of any of these sizes there should be to an inch) disputing warmly as to whether a piece of printing before them was the impression of one of these sizes or the other-so wide is the variation. Types of a certain number of lines to the inch, and numbered accordingly, would be readily known by their numbers. We wonder that such a custom has not long since

In illustration of the inconvenience of these arbitrary names, we will state a case that arose in one of our Northern cities. An order came from South America for the materials of a printing office. It was correctly written in Spanish by a Spanish printer; but, as there was no Spanish printer at hand, the order was incomprehensible, and was not fulfilled until after it had been sent to Cuba, and a translation returned.

Henry Clay.

To the Editors of the Baltimore Patriot:

Veneration and respect for the character of Henry Clay impel me, in this public manner, to vindicate his memory from the aspersion and calumny cast upon it by the Baltimore Daily Argus, in the leading editorial article of that paper of the 9th of September instant.

Among other broad and groundless assertions, the editor of that paper says: "If Mr. Webster's name should be withdrawn as a candidate, he must cast his vote for Pierce and King, if he votes at all; and were Henry Clay now living, we are certain he would vote the same way.

good and indisputable authority for saying so."

In the face of the facts which have been published to the American people respecting Mr. Clav's opinions of the nomination of Gen. Scott for the next Presidency, upon what "authority" the editor of the Argus has the assurance to dethe editor of the Argus has the assurance to de-clare that "he is certain Henry Clay, if now living, would vote for Pierce and King," I do not care to know. From personal knowledge, derived from Mr. Clay in the last few days of his precious life on earth, I know the assertions of the editor of the Argus, respecting Mr. Clay, which I have quoted from his editorial of the 9th instant, are disputable, and are calumniously false, and a gross and most offensive slander upon the loved character and cherished fame of the immortal patriot and sage of Ashland.

During the last ten days of Mr. Clay's illness. I had my lodging at the National Hotel in Washington, where he was, and had daily and almost hourly opportunities to learn and know directly lips, his opinions and sentiments upon political subjects and national affairs. On the day of his death, I stood near the door of his room where he expired. I saw the glorious light of matchless genius, whose splendors have illumi-nated the world, and for half a century lighted ty, extinguished by death and go out in the rayless night of the grave! From a faithful one, who stood at his bed side when he breathed his the letter of the "brevet captain." As Captain last, I received Mr. Clay's last dying words, and the minute particulars of his death scene, and within five minutes after his decease I wrote them down, and also his opinions and sentiments expressed a few days before, respecting the nomi-nation of Gen. Scott by the Whig National Convention, and I transmitted the facts thus written down exactly as they transpired to my personal knowledge to the New Orleans Bee, in which they were published.

After the close of the Whig National Convention, of which I had the honor to be a member. I returned to my lodgings at the National Hotel sickened and died, as did also many other pas-sengers—Sisters of Charity and others. We no-tained Mr. Clay's opinion in regard to the nomitice that the New York Star and other kindred nees and doings of the convention. In his characprints are of opinion that the commander-in-chief teristic frank and truthful manner, he expressed his entire acquiescence in the wiedom and choice of the Convention, in the selection of Scott and Graham as the standard-bearers of that glorious he is, to be sure! We should not be surprised to Whig and Union banner, upon which his patriot learn from the same sources that he had Locos eyes were now "turned to view for the last time," as it flaunted proudly in the auspicious breeze of favoring Heaven. In General Scott's devotion too poorly, for the welfare of those who now work to the Union and the compromise, Mr. Clay exat it. The first effects of the new mode may appear adverse; but the permanent results of such improvements are always beneficial to all parties.

Such were Mr. Clay's expressed opinions and sentiments respecting the nomination of General Scott, and "if he were now living he would vote" for his old tried friends and compatriots, Winfield Scott and William A. Graham, and not, as the Argus asserts, for "Pierce and King."

The voice of Henry Clay comes up from his new-made grave in favor of the election of Scott and Graham as Union Whigs. Though he is dead, his living spirit calls upon every Whig in the land to sustain the Whig nominees and the Whig cause—the cause of constitutional liberty and of our glorious Union !

DEATH BY POISON .- SUICIDE OR MURDER .-On Wednesday night, of this week, Emeline ard. We to-day desired to learn the size of demy Johnson died at her father's house on 7th street, in the Northern Liberties. She was about twentynine years old, and of comely appearance. She had been married, but her husband has not resided with her for perhaps two or three years. It is generally stated that during this time she has received the familiar visits of Mr. Wm. B. Sasscer, a clerk in the Sixth Auditor's Office, a narried man, aged about thirty-two years.

On Tuesday afternoon Mr. Sasscer purchased at an apothecary store on 7th street two grains of strychnine and several quinine pills, remarking that the strychnine was to kill a troublesome dog. On Wednesday night at 8 o'clock he called on Emeline Johnson, and rode out with her in a carriage, and returned to the house again in fifteen or twenty minutes. A couple of hours later the family of her father were alarmed by her cries; and broke into her room where they found her in great agony. They sent for Dr. Bogan, who came promptly, when she implored him to bleed her. Dr. B. thought she was under the impression that the period of her labor was approaching. She told him that she had been for a nonth or more taking medicine to produce abortion, but being unsuccessful had just tried a new medicine, consisting of powders. Dr. B. examined her condition, and told her she had murdered herself! She told him she was bound under oath not to tell who had given her the medicine. She expired in ten or fifteen minutes after Dr. B's, arrival.

A coroner's jury met on Thursday and took the testimony of Mr. Germon's family, (her father's) and adjourned till Friday afternoon to afford an opportunity for a post mortem examination. At its session yesterday Drs. Howard and Borrows were sworn. They testified that they had found the stomach inflamed, and indicating the presence of active poison, which they believed to be strychnine.

Dr. Bogan was also again examined, and stated that he had examined the stomach, and fully beieved that the poison used was strychnine.

The Doctors all agreed that they had never known strychnine to be used for procuring abor-

George Beasley, the hackman, corroborated the above statement respecting the ride out. He had often driven them out.

The verdict of the jury was that Emeline Johnson had come to her death by the taking of strychnine.

An examination into the case is now in progress before Captain Goddard, at the Central Po-

The deceased had one child only, we believe. She was poor. Just before her death she said she was not able to support her family during her confinement. This appeared to be a reason for her wretched act.

Whether Mr. Sasscer gave her the strychnine, and if so, for what purpose, are questions upon which we offer no opinion. Warrants have been issued for his arrest.

Every day we fall in company with one or more voters, of both parties, from the Old Do-minion; and from all we can gather from reliable sources, that State is by no means as safe for General Pierce as our Democratic friends in this direction would have us believe it is. We were assured, a few days ago, by two Democrats who reside there, one of them in the tenth legion, (both of whom intend to vote for Scott and Graham,) that if the Whigs would come up to the work, and do their whole duty, they believe the State could be carried by them.

Transition Coal.

Transition Coal.

This rare and valuable Coal is a variety not quite changed into an anthracite, and it has only been discovered (in large quantities) at three places upon our globe, viz: at South Wales, Great Britain; at Donetz, in Russia, near the Black Sea; and at Dauphin and Lebanon counties, Pennsylvania. In the London market this coal commands the highest price. It is now mined upon the large estate (43,000 acress) of the Dauphin and Susquehanna Coal Company, situated in Pennsylvania, and it is nearer to the cities of Baltimore and Washington than the coal of any other region. For easy ignition, durability of fire, complete combustion, easy adaptation to the temperature of the weather, and its great power in generating heat, it is the user coal in the world. It has the inflammability of the bituminous coal, with the cleanliness of the anthracite, and a greater durability than either. It burns without making any scot or visible smoke, and the combustion is so complete that it retains the fire until all the coal is consumed. Not so with the anthracites, especially the hard and heavy kinds. They do not burn up, and hence the common troublesome practice of sifting their ashes to obtain more feel. In burning the Transition Coal there is no waste, for the small coals made by handling, burn as well as ordinary coal. All should be burned together. If screened at all the dust only should be taken out.

A very erroneous impression exists with many persons that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the most economical for ordinary that the heaviet coals are the birned together. If screened at all the dust only should be taken out.

A very erroneous impression exists with many persons that the heaviest coals are the most economical for ordinary purposes. This might be the case if coals were sold by measurement, but never when they are sold by wenour. In Taylor's valuable work, (Statistics of Coal) the details are given to show that 31 pounds of a free-burning red ash yielded more heat to a room in 15 hours, than 37 pounds of a heavy white ash coal, making the red sah, at $5 6, to be more economical than the white ash at $4 61 per ton. Any person accustomed to use these heavy coals will be astonished at the saving which can be made in burning the lighter kinds, when tested by the weight and burnt in a suitable manner. nanner.

An apprehension exists with some that the free-burning manner.

An apprehension exists with some that the free-burning coals have a tendency to clinker. Now, as a general rule, no coal will clinker unless agreater draught be applied to it than the coal naturally requires. No one would think of applying a bellows constantly to a fire made of seasoned hickory or oak wood, and it would be equally as absurd to apply a blast constantly to a free-burning coal. But the heavy white sah anthracites cannot be burnt without a powerful draft, and without using a larger quantity of coal than the temperature of the weather sometimes requires. Various patterns of stoves, furnaces, cooking ranges, &e., are invented annually to conquer this difficulty, but it has never been done with complete success. In every contrivance, however, which has been invented to burn coal, the transition variety will make a beautiful fire, and no complaint will ever be made to a manufacturer or seller of grates or stoves when this coal is used. The draft alone is to be regulated by a damper. In introducing this new coal for the first time, prepared as it now is by steam power machinery for domestic use, it may give greater confidence to the buyer to say that the celebrated free-burning red sah veins in the Peach Orchard district, near Pottsville, are a continuation of the Daughin veins, and they approach the nearest in value to the Transition coal.
